- American Cancer Society Prostate Cancer: Informed Decision Making Videos

The American Cancer Society has created two prostate cancer videos that address many of the core questions and concerns that men have regarding prostate cancer screening. One video is designed for clinicians and provides an overview of the information they should discuss with their patients to assist them in making informed decisions about prostate cancer screening. Information about the other video, for patients, is below.

- American Cancer Society Decision Aid for Prostate Cancer Screening

The American Cancer Society (ACS) recommends that men have a chance to make an informed decision with their health care provider about whether to be screened for prostate cancer. The decision should be made after getting information about the uncertainties, risks, and potential benefits of prostate cancer screening. Men should not be screened unless they have received this information.

The ACS guidelines recommend that men receive information directly from their clinician or be referred to reliable and culturally appropriate resource. Patient decision aids are helpful in preparing men to make a decision whether to be tested. This decision aid can be used in your practice to help men with informed decision-making.
